What's New In Copy URL Tools?

►Have a problem with too many URLs in your firefox? This is the only way to copy your tabs' URLs to clipboard.
►Copy all URLs from all open tabs to a file named after the tab you are in. Save every URL in a file named after the tab the URL was taken from Search Text on Copy All Tab URL's: ►On "copy all tabs URL's to text file" option, you can change it to display the URL that was copied or display the file name. If you change this to "Display URL" then you can type your search term right on the open tabs URL itself. ►When using the "display all URLs" option, you can type your search text within the open tabs url or you can type it right on the "Display URL" line. ►If you use the "save all tab URLs in file" option, then you can simply change the file name and the path that it is saved to. ►If you use the "copy to clipboard" then you can copy the URL from the file to your clipboard. ►If you use "copy all tab URLs to file" then you can choose a path to your saved data folder. Search Text on Save All Tab URL's: ►You can search the file where all the tab URLs are saved with a specific word. ►Example 1: if you were on tab that has name "How cool is this?.html" then you will be prompted with a file name, so you type How and hit enter. Then you can see all files with "How" in them. ►Example 2: if you were on tab "adventure right.html" then it will list "adventure", so you type adventure and hit enter, then you can see all files with "adventure" in them. ►If you are using the "copy all tab URLs to text file" option then you can just type the tab name and hit enter and it will just list all the tab names under that folder, for example "edit.html"

"bookmarks.html" "scripts.html" "save.html" "bar.html" "archive.html". You will need to pick the correct one. ►If you are using "copy all tab URL's to file" option then you have to choose a path to your saved data folder. Download URL Tools If you like the idea of "Copy URL Tools" and would like to download the source code
