(c) DjVuPlayer.ru figurine factory A labeling machine equipped with the software necessary to apply information to the packaging. The owner can get ready-made labels (specially designed for a specific production) or order individual labels. Up to 2,000 labels of the same format can be placed on each package. The machine can carry out the application of inscriptions on foil, on transparent or opaque films, on labels made of thin and thick cardboard. Flexo printing is also possible. Mottir - E-touch Machinery from Düsseldorf (Germany) produces specialized machines that work on the principle of autofocus flexographic printing machines. Text, images, logo, business information are placed on the label when it is designed. The inscription ending in a circle is translated inside the circle and returned to the screen after its rotation. For the convenience of the operator, a backlight is installed on the front panel of the machine. The machines of this company also have the function of product identification (applying a barcode). Purpose Labeling and labeling machines are used to print any kind of packaging. As cases for them, plastic boxes can be used, in which already printed labels are packed, and plastic bags. This marking is intended to be used on packing slips, which are then affixed to or superimposed on the packaging. At the last operation, a transparent self-adhesive film pasted over the label is used, which is then glued onto the package (or its lid) using a special adhesive. At its core, this scheme is a two- or three-dimensional barcode, which is applied only to cardboard packaging, the surface of which is pre-coated with transparent plastic or laminated with a film. Advantages Sharp vision. This type of equipment is convenient for those industries where it is required to apply information
