Rising Registry Cleaner is a free application that will scan your registry for any potential problems. The application will then scan and repair the registry problems. It will also scan and repair any other problems in the startup processes and memory. Before beginning the scan, you may want to check your startup programs and memory for any problems. The tools used in the scan and repair process should be updated and will scan and repair any problems they find. When your Windows is upgraded to a new version, Rising Registry Cleaner will scan and repair any problems it finds. While Rising Registry Cleaner is not intended to be a definitive solution to registry problems, it is designed to scan and repair registry problems and startup programs. This tool can help you get back control of your computer and start fixing problems yourself. If your machine is infected with viruses, malware, spyware or trojan horse programs, Rising Registry Cleaner will not help. In order to scan the registry, Rising Registry Cleaner uses Registry Cleaning Tools. The tools used in this scan and repair process are updated and will perform a complete scan and repair of any problems they find. For more details about the tools used in the scan and repair process, see the Tools Guide, which is available with the manual. Running this application will not affect the system performance. Even if this tool is not responding and your computer is frozen, please try to restart your computer later. You should do this if the application is stuck on the startup process or you cannot access it. If it is not responding or you cannot access it, close it and then restart your computer. If the problem persists, it is recommended that you restart your computer and try to access Rising Registry Cleaner again. The program should not create any problems or conflicts with your system files or registry. If you find a conflict, please contact your system administrator. You may also try to uninstall the program and then reinstall it. In any case, you may want to save your desktop as a new image to check if you have any problems after installing Rising Registry Cleaner. You may also try to access Rising Registry Cleaner through the Start menu and see if it starts. If Rising Registry Cleaner is not responding, please try to restart your computer. If you are using a laptop computer or notebook computer, please plug it out of power. If you notice that your computer is restarting without an option to save your settings, it is recommended
