Ilhan Omar, D-Minn., at a town hall attended by a crowd of thousands. Sanders, who has endorsed Omar's rival, Rep. Joe Crowley, D-N.Y., won the endorsement of Omar herself in June. The Omar endorsement was the subject of a floor fight in the House and was an electoral coup for the progressive wing of the Democratic Party. Omar has also been an outspoken critic of U.S. foreign policy. Sanders supporters have repeatedly confronted Omar and threatened to harm her at public events since her endorsement of Crowley. MARCIA COHEN: IS ILHAN OMAR AN 'AMERICAN HERO'? This weekend, a group Nurses and health in rural Canada: a review and analysis. This paper reviews literature that describes the nursing practice and work of nurses in rural Canada. The intent is to highlight nursing issues, strengths, challenges, opportunities, and research for rural nursing. Literature reviewed came from electronic databases and searches of the grey literature. Articles were included if they discussed nurses and/or the nursing profession in a rural context, included some discussion of practice and/or work in rural communities, were published in English, and had full text available. In addition, identified literature was analyzed qualitatively. Findings reveal that nurses in rural Canada practice in a variety of settings, including communities, primary care, rural hospitals, long-term care, and hospital-based practice. Nurses and their communities face unique challenges. They are among the first to bear the impact of aging of the population, an increasing prevalence of chronic disease, a changing climate, and fiscal austerity. Rural nurses are characterized as problem solvers. Challenges and opportunities, as well as knowledge gaps, exist with respect to care delivery and systems for rural nurses. There is some understanding of the challenges rural nurses face. Rural nursing is still a young profession; however, there is growing awareness of the issues rural nurses face. Much further research is needed in rural nursing research and 0cc13bf012

How can I export a custom class type? I'm trying to export some type definitions from a module, but it seems there is some special behavior I'm missing. Here's an example #include namespace A{ typedef int type; type a; } namespace B{ // do some stuff } namespace { using A::type; // expected A::type using A::a; // expected A::a using B::type; // expected A::type using B::a; // expected A::a } int main(){ std::cout namespace A{ typedef int type; struct Data{ type value; }; } namespace B{ // do some stuff } namespace { using A::type; // expected A::type using A
