Along with introducing HyperMotion Technology, FIFA 22 also features its first official stadium stadium, the 98,000-seat Allianz Arena in Munich, Germany. We've been lucky enough to get the chance to speak with Patrick Doyle, Senior Designer at EA Sports, to learn more about the upcoming game. Here is what Patrick had to say: How do the new-stadium features work in the game? Are there any obvious differences? We wanted to give our stadiums the authentic feel of having real stadiums with authentic player animations. To achieve that, we've recreated stadiums that are all based on real-life stadiums and from different locations around the world. Realism aside, the new stadiums offer some unique new gameplay features, such as the “wall balls” system. How does this work? As players enter the stadium and take to the pitch, you’ll see real-life wall balls flying off the screen towards them. It’s a new way of close-range aerial duels where the ball can be given back to the player by players on the pitch with a wall ball. Also, we’ve included new celebrations based on the new trophy that we introduced with FIFA 17. Players on the pitch can throw in the direction of one of their opponents as a “foul” or “pass” celebration and the celebrations are all customisable. What about animations in general? Will there be more attempts to replicate real life movements? With the amount of players being exported to from real-life, we found there was actually a lot more movement on the pitch than in previous games. That's due to the way players use the pitch on the real-life pitch, so we've made some changes to try and simulate more of that movement in-game. Of course, we're still working on the realism and performance of FIFA, but we want to ensure that our gameplay is at least competitive to other sports games. For example, we've made sure that defenders are still able to step off their line and follow up on a player outside the defensive line. We've made sure that our tactics system works on the pitch and that when a player passes it will actually be passed and not bounced back. Some of the changes we made include the throws that defenders can make with the ball on the pitch, as well as

Share your achievements and compete with other players live on the platform where you play across FIFA social channels such as Xbox, PlayStation, and iOS.
 - Leadership Style - Vary the Leadership styles of your players throughout the game to define their play style. Players react differently to different styles of leadership.
 - Passing Crouch - Passes to players behind the back line have a higher chance of winning the ball thanks to increased flooring of the pitch. Previously, passes received with the knees would lead to the player being tripped. Whereas now passes to the ball with the knees are more likely to

- win the ball. Where an improvement for no defensive posture against superior downfield passing players.
- Tactics - The team AI adjusts its tactic based on the opposition, the ball and the location in a match.
 - Ball Falling - When the ball hits the ground, the cradled ball will fall safely. Previously, the weight of the player on the ball would damage the ball. Players would swing their arm as they went to try and knock the ball away. Now as the ball falls to the ground, the player is released, safely standing on the ball. Helps enhance the match feel.
 - Direct Play - No more hacking play if you're trying to take a shot in a defensive position. Quicker transitions and clearer gameplay. No more ball bouncing off the wall or the cover.
 - More Instinctive Behaviors - The player now recover from situations quicker and make more effective movements.
 - Observer View - Allows you to strategically control the view the game, you can choose to switch to different camera angles to see the pitch from, this new feature allows the user to watch the game and help to visualise a strategy or detail missed by another player.
