Technical Field The present invention relates to a drive circuit for an electro-optical device, a liquid-crystal-device module, an electro-optical device, a liquid-crystal device module, an electro-optical device, and an electronic apparatus. 2. Related Art The following related arts disclose a system for driving a plurality of light emitting diodes (LEDs). Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2007-52312 discloses a power supply device for supplying power to a plurality of LED arrays. The device includes an LED module controller that controls the LEDs and first to Nth electrical power supply circuits connected to a first to Nth voltages respectively. Each power supply circuit supplies power to an LED array connected to the first to Nth voltages in order to operate a plurality of LEDs connected to the LED array. The power supply device is provided with: a first LED array controller that controls the plurality of LEDs of the LED module controller; and a second LED array controller, which responds to a control signal and the first LED array controller and which drives the first LED array controller. The second LED array controller includes: a plurality of switching circuits including semiconductor switching elements connected in parallel to power the LEDs of the LED array; a first logic circuit that is responsive to the control signal d0c515b9f4
