Contents A Storm of Storms Section One, Chapter One Ladyseil opens up the east-facing window of the Savage's Hall to cool the room off, only to discover that the area in front of her is covered in a pale blue haze. Just as she notices this, a figure emerges from the cloud. A female human, dressed in a flowing pink robe, is cast around the Hall, blowing on her hands. The woman looks up, stares into the haze as if it were a portal (at least, if the reality of magic was anything like those books by Neil Gaiman. The woman was tall, and distinctly overweight - to a good effect. For as she waved her long curls about she was rolling energy from within herself, and dancing it around her hands in obvious pleasure. Her eyes shone, her full lips parted slightly, and nothing about her could be taken as anything other than indulged and joyous. Ladyseil approaches the woman, trying not to think about what she looks like. "Are you there? You must be there,", the woman says, as Ladyseil reaches out a hand towards her. "You must speak to me." Ladyseil, taken completely off-guard, reaches out towards her friend. "Danyl," she says. "Who are you?" "I think you know who I am," he replies, stepping forward towards Ladyseil. "And you know about the door leading out of that place..." Ladyseil cannot remember Danyl's exact words, but he's right. Sometimes, sometimes so very right. They have met before, and after many miles of stroking the beast's head, and in and out of the swamp, they have found each other. "Ladyseil..." Danyl says. "I thought you were dead."

Q: Change Pandas default datetime column back to numeric I am using Pandas to read several files with a bunch of different dates in them. They are dates that were originally produced as strings, so Pandas knows they are datetime64 dtype. However, the dates are now floating point numbers, so when I read them they appear as 2 significant figures. How can I change the default dtype of a datetime64 column to integer or something similar? Note that I am using df = pd.read_csv(...), so it is specifically a Pandas option. Using pandas 1.0.1 with Python 2.7.3 A: You can use the parameter dtype on read_csv: What version of pandas are you using? Make sure you're using the most recent version. If you are not using version 1.0.1, check for a newer version of Pandas. Q: Add a method to a class on runtime in C# I need to add methods to a class on runtime, without modifying source code of it. I could not find anything useful. Please let me know if you have any hint or suggestion Thanks A: You should use one of the various dynamic libraries for this purpose. A: If you know exactly what you want to do then you can provide a method that gets called. [Serializable] public sealed class Foo { public void Bar(object param) { // do something } } ... void MyMethod() { Foo myFoo = new Foo(); myFoo.Bar(param); } This obviously has huge security implications, but if you know exactly what you want to do then this should help. Arrays are so
