Q: Maven validation of a custom datatype in a parameters file I have a custom datatype in my model which is meant to be a string I am trying to validate that the custom datatype is always going to be a String in a Maven project using the @Default annotations on it. At the moment I have import static com.example.Aggregator.AggregatorValidation.AggregatorType; But I do not know how to make Maven aware that the datatype is String, when running mvn install. A: If your custom type extends the String type, you can place @Default annotations on the constructor of the class. You can also override the getDefaultValidationMessage method to provide more specialized validation messages. Why should I join the Breakthrough Breast Cancer movement? If you or someone you love is diagnosed with breast cancer, you are in the right place. Your buddies at Breakthrough were actually taking bookings this weekend, but you beat them to it. Breakthrough is a website, an event and a movement for people all around the world. When we started out, we were just a couple of young Australians who were awestruck and thrilled with the gold medalist performance of Team Australia at the Beijing Olympics in 2008. So inspired, we were. After the Olympic Games were over we decided we needed a way to honour the 22 brave women in this team. We turned our first website into one that was an open space for people to share stories and ideas about how we can make our lives better. With nearly 2 billion visits to the website since it began, it is getting better and better every day. We also created Breakthrough Breast Cancer (B3), so we could be there for you, right from the day of diagnosis; we can guide you through treatment; encourage you to stay strong

Eternal Starlight takes place in the frigid darkness of the asteroid belt. A dying star casts a shadow over a freshly born planet, causing all matter to crystallize and the solar system to be enveloped in a thick fog of nuclear waste. This places new life into the darkness, creating a world ripe for the colonization of a burgeoning colony world. The planet grows, sprouting a civilization, and brings it closer to light through the wonder of scientific engineering. Earth and the Asteroid Belt provide plentiful resources for a thriving industrial empire. But the colony world also holds a dark secret: invisible alien life forms. These creatures dwell in dark places, and were not encountered during the initial colonization of the planet. Their true origins are shrouded in mystery, but they are now willing to visit the sun to spread their seed across the planet's barren surface. White Noise Games has taken the VR world by storm, releasing the original game Under The Moor in December of 2017 to rave reviews. Note: Bug Attack! should not crash when you try to view the achievements, which are system dependent. You can still browse the achievements page and collect them on the 360. Patch: December 25th, 2013Edit: Version 1.2 addresses a bug with the steam version that prevented the achievement A Bug of My Own from unlocking correctly. Version 1.1 Patch:September 6th, 2013Edit: After user requests, I have updated the Windows version of Bug Attack! to address a bug that prevented the game from generating save files. Bug Attack! is available for download on the Windows store as well as Steam and XBLA! (Bug Attack! is for the PC. People should NOT buy Bug Attack! if they are planning on playing it with a 360 controller. Bug Attack! does NOT support XBOX controllers or controllers with other proprietary standards.)Bug Attack! is also available for the PC. The XBLA version of Bug Attack! is available at: (Bug Attack! for the XBOX is not a direct port of the PC version. It's NOT intended to be a direct port, and it is NOT supported if you use it as such. If you need help porting Bug Attack!, I recommend that you ask in the Bugs forum, or perhaps in this thread. Please note that Bugs and I aren't at all happy with being treated like this, and it isn't in my best interests to support it. Sorry for the inconvenience. Maybe someday, Bugs and I will work out a more permanent solution.) Bug Attack! has been out for a while now on Steam. Players have liked the game, but were understandably upset when they could not earn achievements. Player suggestions were taken seriously. I've since been doing a lot of work improving the Achievements. They are a little different from the Achievements you might know from other games, but I'm sure they will be interesting. The patch has been out for some time, but I have been updating the achievements since then. Many achievements have just been enabled. Players are encouraged to continue earning achievements! The Achievements in the game are'related' to Bug Attack! the world. Bug Attack! has had an "Easter Egg" in the Achievements menu for some time, where if you earned 10 achievements, you could kill off the Achievement ghost and it wouldn't pop up any more. We've taken it out. Now that all the achievements

, the next piece of the puzzle Posted: Thursday, November 29, 2013 12:00 am By David StevensonOf The Day After 22 years, the Life's Lane wishes all of us a Merry Christmas, a Happy Holidays and a Healthy New Year. We hope that 2015 is a successful year for yours and our programs, projects, work and adventures. We wish you to have every joyous occasion equally considered. The wonderful Hans Price, a long-time contributor to this blog, provided the closing haunting lines for this historic renewal of our efforts. Now comes the Yule log, Life's Lane picture in the fire. The flames dance.The Angel blows out the candle, Life's Lane fades.The door rings, a company of us settles in to waitThe fireplace spits a speech as words are transformed into smoke:I watched the night grow yellow and red.I listened to the rats scuttle across the logs.'Tis the season for reaching out to a stranger and being reached, for plucking pleasure from the arrangements we make on this merry web of our many lives. Sunday, January 6, 2016 Sarah Allison good music. I miss her. I see her on PBS station WLIW in Pittsburgh twice a week and have relied on her for years. But she has some competition. Here is my music pick for this memorable and awe-inspiring year for humanity. This is a typical afternoon. It is 7:30 - midday. A storm is rolling in from the north and the temperature is dropping. I was off earlier to watch the snow fall. Several inches sat on the landscape and the tall fir trees in the forest as well as the dead limbs of the maples and oaks on the lawns all around the community. I am putting you into my music box. And I am talking about the words, the refrains. The cleverness of the tunes. The simplicity. The sadness. The sunshine. Peace. Love. The music that fits your mood at this time. Almost any black music will do. Right. Now, let's deal with "Riddles In Stone." It's just so realistic for this time of the year. The only thing it does not account for, however, is the early 20th century, first wave Spanish Harlem. Click here for more on this tune. Is it possible that with the arrival of winter will come the real New Year and a real Christmas
