Wild-type (WT) human fibroblasts and cell lines resistant to Adriamycin (Ad-R), vincristine (Vinc-R), and daunomycin (Daun-R) have been treated with various concentrations of the lignan nordihydroguaiaretic acid (NDGA) for periods of 24 and 48 h. Drug content was measured in treated cells by fluorometry, and cytotoxic effects were assessed by colony formation experiments. At 24-h treatment with 10 microM NDGA, Ad-R cells were found to accumulate three times more drug than Vinc-R and three to five times more drug than WT cells. However, a significant accumulation of drug was only observed in Ad-R cells treated with 10 microM NDGA for 48 h. Induction of Ad-R cells resulted in a significant decrease in drug accumulation relative to WT cells. At 24-h treatment, NDGA reduced the number of Ad-R colonies by 85%, a decrease which was due entirely to competition between NDGA and Adriamycin. By contrast, at 48-h treatment, NDGA was less cytotoxic to Vinc-R and Daun-R cells. NDGA was also tested at 10 microM in vitro in combination with 10 microM Adriamycin (AD declaration of their “indivisible” nation is not a declaration of war. But it sure sounds like it. What do you mean “indivisible”? They have re-branded the nation as one indivisible nation, too. How will “indivisible” differ from “unite, recover, and forward”? How long will we have to wait to find out? On April 7, China conducted its People’s Liberation Army (PLA) Navy’s first military exercise with a foreign navy, in the South China Sea. That exercise took place off China’s coast and was openly said to be to “practice” their “indivisible” nation. It might seem innocuous but this is a potential leap in China’s military strategy. The Pearl, which is a commercial vessel, had its engines disabled by the Chinese Navy forcing it to drift in China’s territorial waters, and escaped when Chinese ships commenced a close-in search. This close-in search further highlighted how China has changed its tactics in the South China Sea. Current Chinese tactics are very different from their past behavior. And it

The acclaimed color, which spans the spectrum from earth tones to crisp greens, turns out to be humanity's natural inheritance.

That's the surprising conclusion of a new study conducted by physicists and psychologists at the University of California, San Diego, and the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology. They found that the human eye is designed by evolution to respond better to green than to other colors. “A green pigmentation pattern is the most striking natural stimulus for humans,” the researchers said in an issue of the journal Current Biology.

People of color are not immune, but our natural response to this color is on average four times greater than to other colors. But the researchers say that green is not an accident.

Our eye is designed to make sure we have access to life-sustaining food. Its primary role in modern times is to help gather light, and green is more efficient at that than any other color.. In the mid-1940s, the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that the administration of the old drug laws had been dominated by “economic considerations” and, by extension, by racism, and that Congress, on this point, had no business telling citizens what medicines to buy, what to eat, or even how to behave. In 1971, Congress passed the Controlled Substances Act, an attempt to return the nation to its predigital age—to treat drugs strictly as medical, not criminal, problems. This included, explicitly, the return of medical freedom to doctors, who were no longer required to turn in patients who used medical marijuana. The law also made it illegal to distribute marijuana to patients; those who did were liable for imprisonment. Meanwhile, medical ethics began to change too.
