- Developing of the game Cryptomania - Gold II - is a combination of a block simulator "system", plus a track with racing automata. The main task of the algorithm is to calculate the addition or subtraction of blocks and the output of the blocks results. Already in the game there are dynamic variables - the size of the field, the size of the blocks and the difficulty of the algorithm. The difficulty is represented by a number in a range from 1 - 5 (for 5 digit. Of course, the field can be extended with the addition of more blocks. The central part of the game is the automata, which is made up of a track (on which the race is conducted) and the blocks (in which the automata moves). During the match the automaton receives a sum of money with a random number of digits and must move to the end of the track and catch up to the specified sum. A wide variety of races - from 1×3 up to 1×5 includes different modes: time, speed, mode and distance. With the exception of the distance, which must always be set to 5, the automata can be set to a range of randomly chosen values from 0 to 100 and can also be programmed in advance. The automata is driven by the players and can move over the track in all directions, as well as turn left or right, uphill or downhill. When the program moves, the automata can be set to a range of randomly chosen values from 0 to 100 and can also be programmed in advance.
