. gitee.com/scalaris. you already have 1. 9 on your computer, and you want to get that version installed on other computers or devices. message-service-windows-server-2-to-windows-2012-servers . I enjoy using Docker. It is the answer to scaling and orchestration, which is a best practice in IT. Therefore, I try to build, test and deploy my apps into Linux-based environment, and then transfer and deploy to Windows-based environment using Ansible scripts and Terraform. Because, I found it difficult to build multiple projects into the same Docker image, I have to copy code into multiple containers. Therefore, I wonder if we could build multiple projects into the same Docker image with Docker version 19. We've had version 19 for a while now. I'm not sure what you mean. A: If you run Docker version -t in your terminal, you should be able to see the tags available for your local Docker daemon. For example: $ docker version -t ~/docker_1:0.22-amd64 on java_1:8u126 Also, as another user has suggested, you can "tag" an image using the following docker commit command: $ docker commit So if you do $ docker commit 2efaec17bb8fb The image name will be '2efaec17bb8fb' and the container name will be 'your_image-id' Then just use your newly created container name in the command for the final container creation: $ docker run -d -p 8001:80 -p 8001:443 --name --restart=always -v `pwd`:/var/www/html my_site_site:latest The above command will run your site as a container which will bind port 80 and 443 to localhost as well as attach your current directory to the container's /var/www/html directory. Hi everybody, I have a question. Is it possible to run an Android application from Eclipse, but still be able to debug in the DDMS? For example: If I am coding in Eclipse, run my app, then stop it, then
