It's possible to use Photoshop in a web browser, but you can achieve better results and learn more quickly if you use Photoshop on a computer rather than a browser. Now that Photoshop has become so famous, it seems like a cliché to say that it's been around for 25 years. Yet, it was created in 1982 and was originally called The PhotoDraw. For many years, Photoshop was only available as a paid upgrade to the rest of the Adobe suite. PSD, as it's also called, is the standard file format Adobe uses for all of its raster images — graphics that present a scene and are composed of discrete dots of color in the proper geometric sequence to give the scene its appearance. Adobe started supporting PSD files long before it supported any other raster file formats, so it was the preferred file format for the majority of Photoshop users. Other raster image formats such as GIF, JPEG, and PNG have been supported for years. The width and height of a Photoshop file are specified as an integer in pixels, so the smallest size possible is 1,152 × 786 pixels. The number of pixels in the file depends on the image size you choose when you save the file, as discussed later in this chapter. * * * # Don't worry if you don't get the hang of it at first. Many people find the first time that they use Photoshop painful. It's a lot to take in, and it's easy to get frustrated with how difficult it seems to work. If this is your first experience with a graphics tool, resist the temptation to close down your browser and walk away from the site. You don't want to be put off by an unpleasant experience, and your later successes will depend on your determination to stick with the product and have faith that it will get better with practice. Photoshop uses text-based commands called filters. Many creative people enjoy using filters to play with the way images appear. Filters help create the effect of a mask, burn, emboss, grain, blur, and many other effects, as I outline in Chapter 14. If you don't like filters, or if you need to make a change in the middle of a project, you can always revert back to the regular editing features. In Chapter 18, I explain how to use the Select tool to select and use regular editing features. If you're new to Photoshop, stick with what you know or what you feel comfortable with.

ES NEWS, UPDATES FROM EVERYWHERE IN THE EASTERN & WESTERN PHILIPPINE, INTERNATIONAL NEWS AND MUCH, MUCH MORE! Sunday, November 18, 2006 NPA: To craft a new military command Director Lt. Gen. Rosauro G. Ejercito, was privileged to be invited by the Regional Command-12 (RC-12) commander, Lt. Gen. Ronald Dominico, Jr., to conduct a visit in the Joint Command and Staff Command (JSCC) in Sta. Mesa, Taguig, Metro Manila. Ejercito, who won the military grade of Command of the Year in January 2006, was invited by Lt. Gen. Dominico to meet and exchange ideas on how to better prepare the army in the regional command. "Through the chairmanship of JSCC, the CRCs adopt their respective plans and programs to address the basic (needs) of the Army," the RC-12 chief said in a speech during the meeting of the senior general officers at the CRC building. He said that they have already written down the so-called 'JSCC plan' which gives details on how to sustain and improve the performance of the command. "This 'JSCC plan' has been drawn up in consultation with the operational commander (Gen. Rodrigo Roa, Jr.) and the (JSCC) instructors, who are the personnel to implement the plan," he said. "If the plan is immediately and fully realized, the live-fire and human-resource plans for the future will be drafted," he stressed. "The plans will be grounded on other plans that we had to do, which we have already done, and we have the prepared data," he said. "We are confident and optimistic that the JSCC plan will succeed, and we call upon all of you to support us," he said. He said that, in order to change the country's existing situation, there are 3 elements. They are: 'The environment,' 'the leadership,' and 'the information.' "You should know that you are all responsible for the environment," he said. "It is that small success that we shall look for. But, right now, the enemy is
